Wholesale Market Question Discussed in Mass Meeting.

MAJ. POWELL'S STATEMENT

He Declares That the Commissioners Purpose Has Not Been Changed by the Market Company's Action-They Propose to Close the Whole Street and Put Dealers Under Cover.

In response to the call issued yesterday for a meeting of the market men and women who occupy stands on B street, in front of Center market, a large number were in attentance this afternoon.

It might almost be said that the lame, the halt, the blind, and aged also were at the meeting. They were fighting against the Commissioners of the District and, as they believe, for their own subsistence. Men and women on whose heads the snowy imprint of time was plainly to be seen made their feeble protests.

The meeting was held in the main hall of the market house, and long before the time for the assembling of the men in charge of it, the venders of farm projucts began to troop in. Some were even shivering from the cold in the hall, and one old woman who might have been kissed by Lafayette dur-ing his triumphal tour of the United States, had the rheumatics so bad that she had to be aided up the states. As one of the me said. "what would become of the old and infirm dealers if they were compelled to go and stand in the wind, rain and cold upon the vacant lot which bears the official designation of a hay market? There is absolutely nothing to protect them from the wintry winds, or the sultry rays of old Sol

Many of the people who occupy the places by the market say that they would much rather pay a small rental to the market-company. They say they are not paupers and would rather pay for the space than have it given to them.

given to them.

A poor sid-woman whose stand is near the corner of Ninth street said that the people who occupy the sidewalk stands wanted to pay for the privilege. They made dirt, she said, and the market people had to pay some one to clean it up. Another reason they want to pay for the stands is because some of the farmers come in over night and a special watchman must be employed to watch their produce.

In some instances a dealer will bring in In some instances a dealer will oring in a wagon load of produce on Friday night for the Saturday market day, and then leave his produce on the sidewalk and re-turn home for more. The produce dealers declare that it is absolutely essential to declare that it is absolutely have a watchman.

The rentals asked by the market company, they said, were not extortionate. Fifteen cents a wagon was charged on every day but Saturday, when the price advances to 25 cents.

AIDED THE OUTSIDERS. A large number of the stall-holders inside the market building were present and aided the "outsiders" in their fight. They say they have no objection to the sidewalk say they have no objection to the sidewalk merchants, and much prefer that they be allowed to remain.

The meeting was called to order by Wash-ington Bonifant, who suggested that George G. Curtis, of Prince George's County, be elected temporary chairman. He was elected chairman unanimously. G. V. of Twining City, was elected sec-

The chairman, Mr. Curtis, then briefly stated the object of the meeting, and during his remarks said that the market-men and farmers thought that the Commissioners were placing a great hardship on the women and men to take their stands and make them move out into the open air. He dwelt on the fact that some of the women deended upon their selling farm produce. B. Bryan, of Anacostia, then arose and B. Bryan, of Anacostia, then arise and made a most impassioned speech against the action of the Commissioners. He said he wrote them a letter asking that they revoke the order. He dwelt on the hard-ships on the women, and told the Commissioners that he believed deaths would re-sult from the exposure incidental to the selling of produce, and that they the Com-missioners would be responsible for the

The secretary of the Commissioners, in a very polite note, informed Mr. Bryan that in view of the order having been already to revoke it. Mr. Bryan stated that he would oot suffer so much as others, but that some would be driven to starvation. Mr. Bryan's talk brought forth tumultous applause. The next speaker was a business han, Mr. H. Cosgrove, who roasted the Commissioners, and told the people not to obey the order.

"You people own more of B street than the Commissioners do. You pay the taxes. The street is not a thorough fare, and is not blocked up by you people. It is Inhuman of the Commissioners to drive the poor people to a wilderness to sell their produce. I have just come from the place where they want to put you, and it is six inches in mud."

"A vote of the fact in will be attended."

(A voice)-"And it will be sixteen in a few days."

SEE THEIR CONGRESSMEN. "Gentlemen from Maryland and Virginia you must see your Representatives in Congress and tell them to tell the Commissioners to allow you to remain where you are. It seems to me the Commissioners are trying to drive you away to spite the market company. For what reason they are sore on the company I am anable to say, but there is semething behind this recent move of the men who ran the District of Columbia to suit themselves and their friends." Gen. PURPOSE NOT CHANGED. The Commissioners claim that with the wholesale market they will greatly improve the conditions under which farmers and others may offer their produce for sale in Washington. This prospect, they say, has been obscured in the minds of the very men most benefited. But the Commissioners do not think the . whole duty is done. They cannot agree with the company's suggestion to let the whole matter drop. They think it is their duty in the interest of the whole people to follow the act of Congress, to clear the wholestreet, and put dealers in comfortable places in a business-like way.

MAJ. POWELL'S STATEMENT

Commissioner Powell, who has special charge of such matters, said this morning: "Of course, we are not charged in our purpose by the market company's offer to relinquish charges to farmers. Congress three years ago passed an act setting aside for a wholesale market the reservation then held and rented out by the market company. The company refused to give it up. Last winter, by suit, we recovered possession

Last winter, by sult, we recovered possession and moved off the company's tenants.

"We are now preparing to complete the duty imposed upon us by Congress in the equipment of a wholesale market. Wholesale dealers will be obliged to get off the street. They must either go into the comfortable quarters we shall provide in the wholesale market or they must rent stores elsewhere.

"Why, at the time we took possession of the so-called Haymarket, under the order of court, the farmers came to us and begged of court, the farmers came to us and begged us, almost on their knees, to establish this wholesale market. Their change of at-titude can be accounted for as each per-son sees fit. They offered to pay reas-onable rental for stands in this market, to compete for them by bids and do various other things if we would provide the place for them.

"It is all bosh about the farmers and dealers being protected by the company's shed. Not one-fifth of them can get under it or be sheltered at all by it. Anyone who will go down on the market will see the wagons standing at the curb, and the vegetables piled on the sidewalk on the south side of B street all the way to Twelfth street. They are two deep in places in the squares from Ninth to Twelfth far away from the market building.

"The men, with their teams, stand out wholly unprotected from the weather, and build little fires to try to keep warm. Why, when they used gladly to rent stands in the hay market from the market com in the hay market from the market com-pany the place had no shelter and hardiy any improvement. The dealers stood in the mud and rain. We have filled up the grounds and made a dry place to stand. "We intend to pur over it a good roof and make it as comfortable as possible under the conditions necessary to such a use. "Certainly we intend to provide a whole-sale market and clear the streets, as the law provides."

MINOR DISTRICT MATTERS. The Commissioners this morning replied to Charles W. Campbell that Howard street, Columbia Heights, is on the schedule for improvements to be submitted to Congress; also D. Knowlton, No. 405 New Jersey avealso D. Knowlton, No. 405 New Jersey avenue, that there is no record of a permit issued to connect certain houses in square 650 with the First street sewer, and B. Thequestion, the Secretary says, is whether or not the Northern Pacific Railroad Company has a land grant within the State of Wisconsin, and if so, does the grant ex-tend east of the city of Superior? If it has to grant east of that point the basis for this selection is not within the granted limits, and consequently the selection must fail, and he rejects the list.

The Extraordinary Fakir Had Not the Nerve to Testify Against Other Fakirs Who Used His Name-Persons Claiming Cures Seem to Be Preparing for Exhibitions.

Denver, Col., Nov. 14.-The city is wild oday over the latest sensation in the Schlat-

The crowd was astunded and was posed at first to disbelieve the story. Then they began to discuss the matter, some being inclined to blame Mr. Fox. Today Schlatter was to appear before the United States commissioner as witness against the "blessed" handkerchief fakirs, and the fear of becoming entangled in the and the fear of becoming entangled in the court proceedings is the real reason for the

The trains yesterday brought in a thousand more people from Kansas and Nebraska and more distant points.

J. B. Handy, of Ellsworth, Kan., created a sensation by appearing on crutches before Schlatter and then walking away without them. He was photographed and exhibited for a time as the sample of the work done by the healer.

Today Schlatter is to appear as witness in the case brought before the United States commissioner, wherein two fakirs are charged with using the mails to defraud by advertising handkerchiefs for sale that have been "blessed" by the healer. As the strangers seeking treatment will be more namerous today, there is considerable curiosity to know if he will leave his work to attend court.
